

A volume of coloured hatching in the air

A volume of coloured hatching in the air

Air Grid - Five Houses is a singular phenomenon

Two pedestals, one rose coloured and the other black

Each is configured as a box and conceived as a house

It is easy to see which roof belongs to which house

It is easy to see which roof belongs to which house

It is easy to see which roof belongs to which house

It is easy to see which roof belongs to which house

They can be identified conceptually

Upon moving closer and looking into one of the five houses

One is drawn into another world

It is the world of that particular house

It is as if one were looking into the life of the house

It is as if one were looking into the life of the house

It is as if one were looking into the life of the house

It is as if one were looking into the life of the house

Dissolved from the temporal actions of physically embodied beings

Dissolved from the temporal actions of physically embodied beings

Dissolved from the temporal actions of physically embodied beings

Dissolved from the temporal actions of physically embodied beings

The flux of existence bound within being

As if it were its own unique, self-contained world

The air grid structure is replete with miniscule impressions